

What's New for Fall 2020

Hello!

Here at Safety in Schools, we are constantly hard at work creating content and courses, an invaluable free resource to many students and teachers - and this season was no exception. Check out some of the exciting things we've been up to:

Check out our latest webinar: Youth in a Post Covid World

Nearly 500 participants (20 classrooms and over 400 students, tuned in to our LIVE discussion with our partner Service Hospitality and Special Guests: SIS Managing Director Ross Wickware & Lieutenant Commander Megan McKenzie, Medical Intelligence of the CAF Intelligence Command.

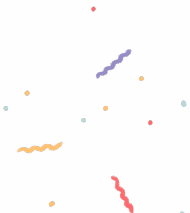

In this presentation, Ross and Megan shared their expertise in a discussion on Youth in the not quite post COVID-19 world. Their back and forth dialog conversation included facts surrounding COVID-19, the importance of mask-wearing, the power of social distancing, hand washing and the impact on the way our students will continue to learn through technology. The information these two experts share in this presentation is invaluable and should be shared far and wide. Big thank you to Service Hospitality who is happy to provide you with access to the recording of the live session!

New course: Manage your health and wellness and combat anxiety

Anxiety is a very normal response and we encourage students and teachers to check out our newest course which is all about managing anxiety and stress in healthy ways.

We've surpassed 100,000 courses donated by SWIFT Learning to Safety in Schools delivered to High schools across BC, AB, SK and MB!

100,000 Students is 100,000 Reasons to Celebrate!

Pictured here are Founders Kim Adolphe and Ross Wickware. This plaque was planned to be presented to SIS from Service Hospitality by George Marshall, Executive Director. Her Honour, the Honourable Lois E. Mitchell, CM, AOE, LLD, Lieutenant Governor of Alberta was planned to be in attendance to celebrate this achievement with us on March 24th along with the Deputy Minister of Education. Unfortunately, like many things, this was cancelled due to Covid-19... but c'est la vie! That didn't stop us from celebrating this exciting milestone!

Over $3.5 million in safety training donated by Keeping young people safe in all aspects of their life...

Founding partner, SWIFT Learning, is now managing Safety in Schools and excited to announce some new initiatives. Stay tuned for new, innovative programs to continue to keep our most treasured resource, our young people, safe- not only as they enter the workplace but also in all other aspects of their life.

In addition to our new Mental Wellness course we will soon be offering more wellness and sports-related courses for brain health. This initiative is part of our mission is to help young people live life to the fullest. We are full speed ahead, not even a pandemic can stop us!

Help Us Continue to Provide Free Courses to Classrooms

Few things mean more to us than seeing youth have access to courses and resources to stay happy and safe. That is why we are asking for your help to support Safety in Schools, so that we can continue to support our young people by providing access to our invaluable resources.

You can help us continue to support mental health, fight cyberbullying and offer workplace safety and training to schools by asking parents to give a one-time tax-deductible donation to Safety In Schools Today. Here is what your contribution means to a student:

If everyone contributed just $10 it would ensure Safety in Schools could continue to provide students with access to all of our resources including our mental health and wellness course- giving them the tools to manage anxiety and stress during this new, 'normal'.
